Scene opens in a dim backroom. Black light. A small poker table. Chips stacked. Cards on the felt.

Ace Dalton leans back in his chair, championship draped across his shoulder. Smug. Relaxed. Like he owns the room.

Killjoy sits next to him. Still. Mask on. Cards in hand.

Ace glances toward the camera.

"We recording? …okay."

He smirks.

"Alan Stryker."

Killjoy coughs to interrupt.

"ADAM."
A low, rough voice through the mask.

Ace nods once.

"That's right. Adam Stryker."

He leans forward, resting his arms on the table.

"The Seers want to officially congratulate you on your win at Locked In. You looked great."

A beat.

"Well… it kinda looked like you were bloodied and out cold. But hey… a win's a win, right?"

He shrugs.

"Come to think of it… you look like that a lot when you win."

A smirk creeps in.

"I'd hate to see what it looks like when you lose."

Ace slowly picks up a chip, rolling it between his fingers.

"But in all seriousness… we're sending you this message to give you some good news."

Heavy sarcasm.

"From what we hear… Jace Valor signed and is enforcing a contract that bans us…"

He lazily gestures behind him toward The Seers symbol.

"…from your match at Black Light 38."

He leans back again, almost amused.

"So that means you get to have your big, serious wrestling match… and you don't have to worry about The Seers wiping the mat with your face again."

"That's good news for you."

Ace gives a small nod.

"We won't be there."

Sarcastically raises his hand to his heart

"We always keep our word."

Silence for a moment. Just the faint sound of chips.

Ace tries to look at Killjoy's cards.

"…you in or out?"

Killjoy looks down at his chips.

"ALL IN." Killjoy grumbles under the mask

Ace looks at the pile… then back up at him.

A small grin from Ace.

"…you don't have shit, do you?"

Killjoy doesn't move.

Ace exhales. Scene Cuts.