- 📍 Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
  - 📏 5'10"
  - ⚖️ 238lbs
  - 🎂 Age: 53
  - ⭐ Debut: 1994 (Rustbelt Wrestling)
  - 📄 Contract Status: Appearance Deal – CFW

🔥 Overview

Alaric Green is cut from the rough cloth of the American indie circuit — a 30-year veteran with scars to prove every mile. A no-nonsense brawler with a knack for grinding matches down to their ugliest parts, Green has carried gold across multiple territories but never chased the spotlight. His reputation was built in smoky halls and steel town gyms, where toughness mattered more than ticket sales.

Originally announced to face Dominic Hex at CFW: Reclamation, the match never materialized — but Green didn't let the moment pass. He made his official CFW debut later at Crossroads, stepping straight to the microphone and calling Hex out directly. For a man like Green, there's no mystery and no smoke. He just wants the fight.

Style & Strengths

- Rough, hard-hitting, smashmouth wrestling style
  - Prefers striking exchanges and grinding holds that wear opponents down
  - Uses his veteran instincts to dictate pace and control ring positioning
  - Takes punishment well — thrives on outlasting younger, flashier opponents

Signature Traits

- Often tapes his fists and wrists in worn-out white athletic tape, stained from years of use
  - Known for blunt, gravelly promos — straight talk, no theatrics
  - Doesn't celebrate wins; treats them like just another day of work
  - Carries himself like every match could be his last, and he's fine with that

Finishing Move

Iron Verdict — A short-arm lariat delivered with crushing impact, often set up after corner strikes or mid-comeback counters

Notable Moments

- Held multiple regional heavyweight titles throughout the 1990s and 2000s
- Known for bloody feuds in Rustbelt Wrestling and Steel City Pro during their heyday
- CFW: Crossroads — interrupted proceedings to call out Dominic Hex, setting the stage for a collision of past and present violence

- Reputation as a gatekeeper for younger talent: “If you can hang with Alaric Green, you’re ready for anything.”

 Quote

“Wrestling ain’t pretty. Neither am I. But I’m still standing.”
